Siblings Prepare for College and Careers at Center for Innovation

The Laurel County Schools Center for Innovation (CFI) since opening in 2015 has enjoyed serving nearly 1200 students and has also served a significant number of siblings that chose to participate in the technical programs, but currently one family has sent three students to the CFI to assist in their college and career preparation. “We are honored to have the trust and respect of our student’s families and that they would share their students educational experience with us is such a positive expression and vote of confidence from the family in faculty, staff, and school,” remarked Dr. James M. Davis, Principal.

The CFI is a Career & Technical Education school that emphasizes a rigorous and quality curriculum that provides instruction and programs of study in the areas of Science, Technology, Engineering, Mathematics, and Healthcare (STEM-H). The school has significant advanced technology being utilized for student learning in the labs and classrooms which allow students to learn using the latest equipment that is found in colleges and real-world workforce settings. Students can choose to participate in one of a number of programs of study to include: Media Arts Technology (MAT), Computer Information Technology (CIT), Allied Health Science (AHS), Industrial Maintenance Technology (IMT), Engineering Technology (ENG) and Aviation (AVN).

All programs at the CFI offer industry recognized, career-ready credentials, dual credit college courses, and work-based learning opportunities. For more information please contact the CFI at 606-862-5580.

L-R: Blaine Storm, Branson Storm, and Bailee Storm all of whom attended, are attending, or will be attending as students at the Center for Innovation.
